

Each photograph in this book tells its own story about the places where they were taken, all of which are somewhere around the Mediterranean. They capture some glimpses of the crosscurrents of life and the way buildings, landscapes, people, animals, things, and activities co-exist somewhere. Sometimes jumbled together randomly, sometimes planned carefully and occasionally full of visible and invisible borders that keep things apart.

