INTRODUCTION

Jesus Chrestus tells, through archeological and historical data I have found and processed, about the Christianity's birth. The original Gospels's text is not intended as a basis for the faith, but instead they were notes to the various rulers or persons, as were those texts which have been usually considered historical. Jews do not like the Christianity for its heretical standpoints and its habit of borrowing their own historical texts for use. Paul and Silas together with their companions were Romans. Paul's 'word of God' was teachings of Jesus Chrestus's Christian's sect, founded by him in Rome, about the worship of Serapis, and he spread Christianity from Rome to elsewhere, instead of contrary. Conversion to the faith meant direct support for the Syrian ruler. That is certainly by no means about religious message or salvationism. My book tells correct information in relation to the crucifixion of Jesus, and the forbidden knowledge Church has concealed about Jesus of Nazareth who was crucified in the city of Rome for having rebelled. Book speaks about the 'Essence' to make a difference to various religions. Christian (word) comes from the Chrestus i.e. Christ, who led the worship of a cannibalistic cult of Isis which was based on the city of Rome, and which is why even Jews persecuted the sect of Christians. Christianity is not originally from Israel, but instead from the city of Rome, and eventually did spread everywhere else from there.

THE ESSENCE

Essence or Existence means reality here and now, and all that exists. The Essence includes everything Existent and our universe as well as other possibly existing ones. The Existence includes otherworld, the invisible world which can not be understood by eyes. The Existence does not mean a substance or material as we know them. All things are either included or not inside the Existence, and they are thus to be seen as exclusive concepts. We can call invisible figures in Existence as 'Existent Beings'.

While people pray to God he is not that god which he is thought to be. We are being helped and we get knowledge for right decisions, but help comes from the Essence which nobody knows. The Existent Beings are always present in the environment around us forever, like it or do not, and whether or not we are believers or atheists. Humans can see light-colored characters steer him to the right direction or waving at dangerous time, and feel their comforting touch. The characters are not angels and they have no wings. The Existent Beings know past, present and future, and help alcoholics, drug addicts and many others. The Existent Beings' own existence and deeds are something else than what are people's beliefs in religions. The Essence is not based on good or evil, and neither Essentialists are God, who is begged for mercy or who lets bad things to happen for humans and animals. People make their own evil to each other and against themselves. Weather conditions and natural disasters are coincident, and can not be affected but the Essentialist's may warn about them. For Essentialist's there is no need to directly communicate with humans, and they have nothing to do with the secular religions, as for the Essence religious boundaries are unknown. The Essence is outside the view of a human mind. At the death of a consciousness body stops moving. The Existence lives there for some time. Researchers have scanned brain-deads' souls and have made contact with the depths of the human mind.

Essentialists help through me those who are needing help during healing work. Healing is done by being humble and lowly on own personal gifts and skills. From the Existence (otherworld) come helpers and for their help should be felt gratefulness, and those invisible helpers be respected. For this work the Bible is not needed, nor the Jewish history books, or any other holy books in which the rulers' names have been omitted and replaced with just 'god'.

Contemporary healers are called doctors. They just heal more efficiently their patients than Jesus' peers. There are also those who are able to heal some diseases with touch and not with drugs. Such a power in the vicinity of a such person that one is experiencing a deep sense of peace. Many wonder healers' knowledge on their petty problems; ills and mysteries when arriving to their meeting with the healer for the first time. The healer does not tell about the future for even a payment at all, because the human mind does not fare well about such knowledge.

Healing work using hands has been studied in the United States and found out that such a healer is able go to the same frequency as patient while sending the healing power to the one who has a weak energy field. That tracks nerve functions with electrical impulses and healing is based on proven things. The healer touching with his hands results to a heat flow passing through the body. Those who are not in need of help or are not dying, will not feel this heat flow. Healer may remark to some people about their future, if the issue has great importance to a human life.

One can experience from the healer's touch a feeling of warmth or burning sensation just like the sunshine on a skin. While healing first and middle fingers are to be put over wrist's artery and other hand on forearm. Withing some time the flow of heat is transferred towards a sick place or whole body. Healing power has different colors for different conditions. A cancer patient closing his eyes sees yellow color and one suffering from cardiovascular disease has the color red, rheumatoid arthritis including other rheumatoid diseases are green. Color depth varies from disease to disease and depends on it's severity. Almost all cry during healing work and the weeping of the past and the healing occurring causes some difficult issues and denied emotions spill during the next few hours. Many people have received assistance from the healers, but they do not need to prove it. Vicinity with a healer can make you experience the miracle in a shop or in a bus.

Healing work is not about having money, or about abusing people's distress. Non-pharmacological healing work has nothing to do with secular religions. Millenarist preachers say that they can heal the disease, but several people have said they lied as the preachers themselves forcefully prodded them over by the shoulders. Any illness needs to be healed without the wounds and injuries caused in the church or during mass-hypnosis. Instead a light touch is enough, or often merely the healer's presence. Who are sick should seek medical advice by far. One should not forfeit his or her health by using alcohol, tobacco or drugs.

UNIVERSE AND GENESIS

Dimension itself can also mean a separate world, the universe or space. Dimension itself can not be seen. If time is considered the fourth dimension, it can not be seen as a simple way, therefore, as 'time' does not reflect light to the human eye, a way that it could be normally observed.

Observable space can not be left with speed slower than light's speed. Speed of light is not the maximum possible speed, but accelerating to speed faster than it is just impossible. Some of the spatial regions are unattainable in this world (universe).

Dimension also means another universe, ie same multiverse's other universe, which is similar according to the laws of physics, but the history of the world differs, assuming there exists any, and if multiverse even exists. If it exists, the history of all the possible results have already occurred or will occur eventually.

Hyperspace is not likely to be in the same multiverse because its universes' physical laws are always the same. Different multiverses have their own laws, assuming that they exist. Dimensions may be more than just the traditional state in which people move and thus hyperspace can accommodate the same universe, but through things called wormholes.

Hyperspace would therefore be possible either as a separate universe outside of our own universe, or otherwise it would not be part of Euclidean space, ie in either case does not directly touch observable part of our space. Universe can, of course, also have more than three or four dimensions, such as the Thread-theories suggest. According to them, even up to 26 dimensions may exist. They are invisible dimensions, because they are vestigial and thus impossible to detect. Practically observable space activities is the best possible example of the multiverse existing, of which border on the other side can not be seen, but perhaps neither can be reached. On the other hand the limit is now 46.5 billion light years away, although it moves away due to an acceleration of the expansion. Expansion occurs steadily at each point of the universe, and not just on the 'edge', which is not always practical thing at all. On the other hand, surely Pluto is invisible to the naked eye or can not for now be reached.

If the planets are interpreted as dimensions, so that part of the universe, which is invisible, is all of the world's structures outside human's capability to perceive. Thus, for example gravity does not allow itself to be seen it as giving rise to new curving not found three-dimensionally very directly.

In the beginning there was no time, nor space. There was nothing. Energy was existant in endless quantity. It constituted a singularity, whose density was infinite, and it contained all the energy, that the world includes. For some reason, there was a resounding energy wave, which created time and space, which will still continue to expand. Energy spread unevenly. The universe has no center, neither there is a edge. The first few seconds over the heat of about one billion degrees atoms gear flew around the space.

Withing two minutes from the Big Bang were born the atomic nuclei. Thermal nuclear fusion took place, namely high-temperature atoms' gear attached themselves to each other. Temperature was decreasing slowly while 3 000 protons and neutrons inside the nuclei dragged around electrons. When temperature declined further lighter gases like helium and hydrogen did form.

A few hundred thousand years later expanding universe was filled with ionized gas, which can be called plasma. When there were no longer free electrons, nor any other traces of the Big Bang, photons were able to flow freely. Space was now bright and translucent.

The sun is a star. At the beginning of its life, gas and dust cloud of spherical aglow shape formed it. The cooling temperature caused a huge gas ball to collapse to its own gravity because of its weight. It began a fusion reaction inside its core and there were formed nuclear fusion like energy outbursts. Other surrounding gas and dust clouds formed in a similar manner the planets' orbit or it created its own planets from its own matter. The radiation has been subject to all of life's development. Our solar system is young compared to the others. You might think that life has evolved elsewhere in similar way as on Earth and advanced human-like intelligent beings or organisms exist.

Human species' oldest fossils are found in Ethiopia. The species of Ardipithecus ramidus and its female hominid lived about 4.4 million years ago in a woody area. Bible's of Genesis is much younger thing and written by a time when the script language had already evolved. At Uruk of Mesopotamia have been found the world's oldest symbolic language and thus customarily that is why it is called the cradle of civilization. Mesopotamia is comprised of Iraq, Syria and the eastern banks of its flowing rivers, Euphrates and Tigris. Greek 'meso' means 'middle' and 'potamoi' means 'flows'. Mesopotamia has been under rule of the Roman Empire. From Australia has been found about 15 million years old bag of animal fossils. Bandicoots are remnants of the cave-dwelling animals, Thylacine, bats, koala and kangaroo-like animals. Nimbado's lavarackorum is named after the animal that was characterized by a sheep's size and by possessing giant fingernails.

IESUS NAZARENUS
REX IUDAEORUM

This book tells what was a step prior to an emergence of the Christian Faith, who Jesus Chrestus was and why priests did not tell the whole truth about him.

You can read more about this man as well as from many other intriguing facts between these covers.

All began from a scandal and the Roman Church's infamous blunders still continue without an end in sight. Clerical celibacy is just a remnant of Cybele's worship.

The original Nicene Creed has been corrupted by adding a phrase 'Maker of heaven and earth'. 'Son-of-Father' has been changed into separate words: 'a Father' and 'a Son', and thus two distinct personae have been formed. The Holy Spirit is also an inclusion made at a later date.

It is likewise worth to notice that Jewish religious laws banned Crucifixion in Judaea's region at that time.
