

Poems about pain, redemption and hope,
among other things

ELEGIES

by

EETU SAMUEL HILTUNEN

© 2025 Eetu Samuel Hiltunen

Cover Art: Emilia Kannosto

Publisher: BoD · Books on Demand, Mannerheimintie 12 B, 00100 Helsinki, bod@bod.fi

Printed by: Libri Plureos GmbH, Friedensallee 273, 22763 Hampuri, Saksa

ISBN: 978-952-80-9502-6

“ELEGIES”

Eetu Samuel Hiltunen

August

Sunshine
In your blue eyes

You were dressed in white I in black

Promised to be yours until death does us part

It is winter now
I am wearing black

You went away and told me that you will never return to me

darling

Controlled Demolition

Feelings come and go they are just feelings

Feel them
Feel the pain
Be the pain

Controlled demolition
of your dreams

Reaching for something that will never happen

Pick up your cross carry it until the day
you die

Feel the pain
Be the pain

Run

Run towards the goal
Do not look back

Wait for the finish line
The race is not over yet

Let your tears out Embrace your fears

Embrace the loneliness

Run with a purpose

You were created by God

He knows your sorrow Trust in the consolation

Trust in what God has promised those who follow Him

Fading

Happy memories of childhood Carefree summer vacations

Fading

Now you realize you are older and alone

Yet you are never alone

Christ is King

He died for your sins Repent and believe the gospel

Accept grace
Be saved from eternal damnation to life everlasting

Every knee shall bow

Artificial Insanity

You put your trust in artificial “intelligence”

Your machines are taking over Machines becoming monsters

The monster is you
You want to go to Mars Why not go to the Moon first?

Enjoy hitting the firmament

Your transhumanist ideas make me sick

Your robots
Your cyborgs
Your fake reality has no soul

Your virtual 3D chess board is short-circuiting

Dethroned

Kings
drunken with madness

Empires built on sand disintegrating

Your smart cities
Control grid of gulags

Capitalist Communist China totalitarian gray dawn all over

The “shine” of it all hurts my eyes

You pretend to be a savior

You are the devil in disguise

I will never bow to you

I can see through your lies kings dethroned

Tear

All that glitters is not gold
Your corruption of old

All your palaces are burning

Yet you propose a toast to the new leader

While mothers struggle to feed their children

You are laughing at your scissor cost-cutter memes

Trust

I trust no man
I trust no woman

I only trust God Almighty:
The Father, the Son and the Holy Spirit

The truth shall set us free

This world is temporary

This pain is not forever

It only lasts for a while

Sow in tears

Reap with joy

Gather treasures in heaven

Lift your head up

"Elegies" is the debut poetry book by Eetu Samuel Hiltunen.

The book is a collection of poems about feelings, loss and faith, for example.

