Great ape

I see the humankind as a peculiar animal species on a water planet
in space

The human is a great ape

What separates humans from other apes is mainly a diminished coat of fur

By dressing and adorning themselves
humans conceal their animality

The human has evolved
to be relatively intelligent compared to other apes

Living in large communities has developed
emotional regulation
and social skills

This has enabled
the formation of organised societies

The laws of societies
cause guilt

The sins of religions cause sinfulness

Tolerance and mercy alleviate these negative feelings

Human

Perfection cannot be demanded of a human

Evolution progresses at varying speed

Sometimes there are also setbacks for example as a result of wars

Human behaviour is still quite animalistic

Subconsciously humans are primitive especially when drunk or high

Social relationships are diverse and complex

Humans experience their lives through senses and emotions

The emotional range is wide beginning from fear and anger in cold and hunger

At the other end of the emotional range are falling in love and artistic experiences

Humans are still fighting for living space and the continuation of the lineage

Physical strength and appearance still matter

Wealth and Intellectual qualities are still valued

The human population on the planet is growing

At the same time the climate is warming
and sea levels are rising

The struggle for living space
and resources
is intensifying

Violence is to be expected and flows of refugees

This pictorial verse novel describes humankind as a peculiar animal species on a water planet in space.

Text and pictures are based on my experiential observation.

Humans are allowed to be sinnerish.
